Consolidated Edison

ED -- NYSE -- Neutral -- 2

Company reports solid second quarter results and raises the low end of 2017 earnings guidance

Investment Highlights

- Consolidated Edison reported second quarter adjusted earnings of $0.58 per share versus $0.60 per share in the second quarter of 2016. Earnings were modestly below consensus expectations of $0.62 per share. Second quarter results were negatively impacted by higher depreciation and amortization expense along with higher property and income taxes. Also, there were lower revenues associated with the timing of the company's new electric rate plan. However, the company benefited from lower operations and maintenance expense.
- Management raised the low end of the guidance range. Con Edison now expects earnings this year to be in a range of $4.00 to $4.15 per share. The company had previously projected a range of $3.95 to $4.15 per share. We are maintaining both our 2017 and 2018 earnings estimates of $4.08 and $4.25 per share, respectively. While we continue to believe Consolidated Edison has a solid fundamental outlook, we expect ED's earnings to grow at a somewhat slower rate than its average electric utility peer. We anticipate the company growing its earnings at a 4% to 5% annual rate over the next few years compared with a 5% to 6% rate for the average regulated utility. Yet we believe Con Edison carries less risk than the average utility with its focus on its transmission and distribution assets. In addition, ED has entered into the contracted renewables business, which we believe makes sense.
- We maintain our Neutral rating on Consolidated Edison due to valuation. In our view, the stock is fairly valued trading at over 19x estimated 2018 earnings. However, we continue to regard ED as a high quality utility and suitable holding for conservative utility investors, and note the company has raised its dividend for 43 straight years.

Suitability

We assign a 2 suitability rating to Consolidated Edison. This is a large regulated utility that generates consistent earnings and dividends. The company has one of the best dividend growth track records in the entire electric utility industry. We regard ED as a suitable holding for conservative utility investors seeking dividends and modest capital appreciation potential.

Investment Ratings

Buy - We believe the stock has significant total return potential in the coming 12 months.

Long-term Buy - We believe the stock is an above average holding in its sector, and expect solid returns to be realized over a longer time frame than our Buy rated issues, typically 2 -3 years.

Neutral - We believe the stock is an average holding in its sector, is currently fully valued, and may be used as a source of funds if better opportunities arise.

Underperform - We believe the stock is vulnerable to a price set back in the next 12 months.

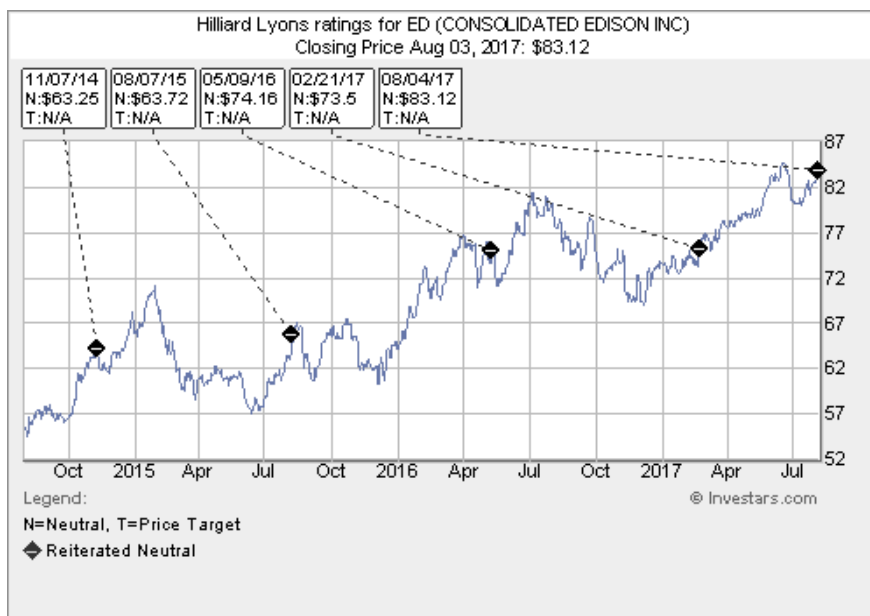

Suitability Ratings

1 - A large cap, core holding with a solid history

2 - A historically secure company which could be cyclical, has a shorter history than a "1" or is subject to event driven setbacks

3 - An above average risk/reward ratio could be due to small size, lack of product diversity, sporadic earnings or high leverage

4 - Speculative, due to small size, inconsistent profitability, erratic revenue, volatility, low trading volume or a narrow customer or product base
